JFK exhibit allows you to test your own theory

A turning point

The students wanted to make the exhibit more interactive.

- "We're drawn to things that enable us to move around and sort of capture our attention," Bonelli said. "This allows it to become a tangible thing."
- Kratzer said he tries to teach about JFK's assassination as the threshold to the turbulent '60s. "I think working on this really gave them a great vehicle to place this moment in history. For someone to take a shot from a window and kill your president is still a pretty amazing thing."

What do you think? Arlen Specter's theory is tested at an interactive PhilaU exhibition.

Whether you think Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone or with others can be tested at a Philadelphia University exhibit examining the single-bullet theory made famous by former Pennsylvania Sen. Arlen Specter when he was with the Warren Commission.

The exhibit, called "Single Bullet: Arlen Specter & the Warren Commission Investigation of the JFK Assassination," is the first exhibit of the Center for Public Policy named after the late senator. A team of students and professors for one year worked on it, researching, designing and building the entire thing.

If you go

'Single Bullet'

The exhibition is free and open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays until April 2014. It's supported with a $100,000 grant from PNC Foundation.

Quoted

"Now, there is so much secrecy. That whole age of driving around and shaking people's hands is over. It's a loss of innocence."

Kratzer

What sets this exhibit apart from other JFK ones in the city is it's interactive — visitors can test their own theories by physically putting themselves in the situation John F. Kennedy was in 50 years ago Friday.

"The students decided as a group the visitors should be put into the place of Arlen Specter, and into the place of JFK," said David Kratzer, associate professor of architecture who worked on the project with students. "That led into putting yourself into the place of [Abraham] Zapruder, who videotaped the event."

A life-size model of the limousine Kennedy sat in at the time of his death is the main attraction, and it uses computer monitors to show where bullets hit.

There's also an investigation room where visitors can learn about Specter's controversial theory that a single bullet hit both JFK and Gov. John Connally.

"We went very in-depth with the assassination itself before we even started the design phase," said graduate Ted Nicholas, who worked on the exhibit.

Amanda Bonelli, a fourth-year architecture student, said doing research on all the different exhibition elements made her think about her own JFK assassination theory.

"You feel different emotional pulls in different areas," she said. "Working on individual pieces really led you to investigate things yourself."

Pay up. After third try, House transit bill advances to Senate

Franklin Moon said the public shouldn't be scared: "Bridges rarely fall down."

That's not the problem. Here's the problem: "We're to the point where bridges are deteriorating at a rate in which if we don't do something this year, then next year it's going to cost more money," he said.

Moon, an associate professor of civil engineering at Drexel University, said Pennsylvania has "systemically underfunded" its aging infrastructure system.

The transportation-funding bill is presently on its way to the state Senate. Twenty-four hours after the state House twice voted down the bill that would fund repairs to many of the state's bridges, roads and public transit systems, lawmakers reconvened late Tuesday night and voted it through.

Quoted

"If you want a public infrastructure system, then you have to pay for it. And Pennsylvania has systemically underfunded theirs."

Moon

The vote ushers the $2.3 billion bill into the Senate for approval. If it passes the Senate, it returns to the House for final approval. It could be approved as early as Thursday.

The House bill calls for raised rates for driver's licenses and registration, moving violations, and gas. All would take effect in 2015.

Police seeking TV burglar

Police are looking for a man who broke into a vocational training school on Roosevelt Boulevard and stole a flat-screen television using a shopping cart.

On Nov. 5, the man broke into the Prism Career Institute in Rhawnhurst and then left the building and returned with a shopping cart.

He re-entered the building, picked up a flat screen TV and put it in the cart. As he pushed it out to the street, an unknown male walking by stopped and helped the burglar walk the television north on the boulevard. The suspect then returned to take more items.

The perpetrator is described as a white male between ages 35 and 40, standing between 5'6" and 5'9," with a medium build. METRO

Uncollected taxes haunt city, schools

Delinquent. City Controller said poor tax collection is costing millions.

The city and school district lost a combined $120 million in the past two years due to poor tax collections and enforcements, city officials said.

City Controller Alan Butkovitz on Wednesday released a review of the Department of Revenue that showed the city's collection rate of 88 percent was not up to par with its sister cities.

"If that $70 million was collected for the school district, then needed positions such as nurses and counselors could have been provided in our schools," he said.

TOMMY ROWAN

Recommendations

To improve collections:

- Report delinquent property owners.
- Contact past-due property taxpayers immediately following the tax deadline.
- Install monthly payment plans with penalties.

Bill Clinton receives the 2013 Presidential Medal of Freedom presented by President Barack Obama in the East Room of the White House on Wednesday in Washington, D.C. / GETTY IMAGES

Obama, Clintons join forces for Kennedy event

Politics. It allowed Obama and Clinton to warm a relationship that has seen its share of strains.

President Barack Obama joined forces with Bill and Hillary Clinton on Wednesday to recognize the legacy of John F. Kennedy, the president who inspired a generation until he was felled by an assassin's bullets 50 years ago this week.

Obama awarded the highest U.S. civilian honor, the Presidential Medal of Freedom, to former President Clinton and 15 other Americans who have made significant contributions to U.S. culture, politics, sports and science.

The event was intended as a testament to the memory of Kennedy, who signed an executive order shortly before his death creating the Presidential Medal of Freedom. Kennedy also established the Peace Corps and set the country on a path to landing humans on the moon.

After the event in a packed White House East Room, Obama, Clinton and his wife, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, paid homage to Kennedy in a visit to his Arlington National Cemetery grave.

The day was steeped in powerful political imagery as Obama and the Clintons appeared together against a backdrop of speculation that Hillary Clinton may be laying the groundwork for a run for the Democratic presidential nomination in 2016. REUTERS

Oregon's health care site never worked

Oregon, a state that fully embraced the Obamacare, is enduring one of the rockiest rollouts of President Obama's signature health care law, with an inoperative online exchange that has yet to enroll a single subscriber, requiring thousands to apply on paper instead. REUTERS

Obamacare. Early data show older people more likely to sign up

More older Americans than young adults so far have signed up for new insurance coverage under the state marketplaces created by President Barack Obama's health care law, according to early data from four states reporting details on their enrollment.

The age balance is being closely watched to determine the financial stability of the insurance market created by the Affordable Care Act, as the participation of younger people is needed to offset costs for sicker beneficiaries. To ensure that younger people sign up, the law requires individuals to pay a penalty if they do not have health coverage. REUTERS

Fla. congressman gets probation on cocaine charge

Prison. If he had been caught in Florida buying an equal amount he could have faced felony charges.

Freshman Rep. Trey Radel, R-Fla / GETTY IMAGES

Florida Congressman Henry "Trey" Radel pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of possession of cocaine in D.C. Superior Court on Wednesday and was sentenced to one year of probation.

Radel, 37, a Republican who was elected to the House of Representatives last year with the backing of the Tea Party movement, was charged after buying 3.5 grams of cocaine in Washington's Dupont Circle neighborhood on Oct. 29 in the presence of an undercover agent, the government said.

"Your honor, I apologize for what I've done," Radel told Judge Robert Tignor during the sentencing hearing. In an earlier statement, Radel said his "struggles with alcoholism" had led him to make an "extremely irresponsible choice."

Quoted

"I am so sorry to be here. I know I have let my constituents down, my country down and, most importantly, my family, including my wife and my 2-year-old, who doesn't know it yet."

Radel
told Tignor in court

The case against Radel stemmed from an investigation by Federal Bureau of Investigation and Drug Enforcement Administration agents into cocaine trafficking in the Washington area, Assistant U.S. Attorney Nihar Mohanty said.

DOUGLAS COUPLAND

Douglas Coupland is a Canadian writer, artist and designer. His first novel was 1991's "Generation X: Tales for an Accelerated Culture." His novella, "Temp," of which this is the 11th installment, will be running online and in the pages of your daily Metro each weekday through Nov. 29.

Day 14: Temp makes lemonade from lemons

OK, the nice thing about being a temp is that if you screw up, you leave; but you were going to leave anyway, so it's no big deal. I suppose this is true for anybody with a job, but for temps it's just more out in the open.

After almost no sleep I arrived at work only to find gossip and fear mongering. The worst gossip was that Danimal was in a coma, when, in fact, he was in a $20,000-a-day hotel with a slightly collapsed left lung and an unhelpful feeling-sorry-for-himself attitude.

Sarah No. 1 walked up to me at my desk and said, "I guess we were all behaving badly yesterday."

I was incensed: "I was doing no such thing! I was there just to listen to Dan vent about the warehouse fire! You're the one who got a room."

Sarah winked at me: "Have it your way. Here's a pile of files that need alphabetizing."

Ugh. I decided my day desperately needed some cheer, so I phoned my sister's friend who breeds golden labs. We had a quick chat, and just before lunchtime, she arrived with two blue plastic storage tubs filled with puppies.

I ushered her into the admin area. In a loud, crisp voice I shouted, "Oh no! There's been an explosion!"

Everyone looked stunned.

"That's right — an explosion of cute! Hilda, release the hounds!"

Ahhh, the puppy bomb — is there any greater experience in life? Eighteen chubby bundles of YouTube-able, romping joy demanding nothing except unconditional love — and snacks.

Everybody got down on the floor, and it took only a minute for people to learn that the person with the most food is the one who gets the most puppies, so in came the lunch bags. I was proud to have brought even the smallest dab of joy to the otherwise dreary lives of the soon-to-be-fired, full-time staff. Yes, I was proud of myself for firmly turning the day around.

The icing on the cake? Outside the building there was a zombie walk with about 200 kids, dressed in their finest living dead, headed to a political protest starting outside AmQex next door.

And that's when two things happened: A massive bus, like Bon Jovi on tour, pulled into the parking lot and 50 Chinese people emerged holding measuring tapes, string and clip boards. Then half a minute later about 20 cops arrived to shut down the AmQex protest. "They make engine parts for drones," whispered Sarah.

The Chinese delegate's leader said, "I am most curious to see how protesters are handled in your country."

There's been an explosion of cute! Little puppies can make any bad day for Shannon a little bit more tolerable. / ZODNAR

Today, Kirstie Alley isn't feeling too well and Katy Perry finds love very painful.

Big news in babies and matrimony in Hollywood

A lot's shaking this week in babies and engagements, friends!

First up is Kelly Clarkson, who wasn't joking when she said she was planning to get started on a family as soon as possible after marrying Brandon Blackstock last month. The singer took to Twitter with some very big news: "I'm pregnant! Brandon and I are so excited! Best early Christmas present ever," she wrote. And if she has her way, the baby will be wearing pink. "I'm totally gonna have a girl. I'm manifesting it! And when I have a girl, you're gonna be like, 'That chick knew it!,'" she gushed to Parade.

Meanwhile, on the less exclamation-point-use front, "Once Upon a Time" co-stars Ginnifer Goodwin (Snow White) and Josh Dallas (Prince Charming) confirmed they are expecting a little prince or princess of their own. It is not known if Goodwin's pregnancy will be worked into the plot of the show. Chris Hemsworth and wife Elsa Pataky also announced that they are expecting their second child together, Hemsworth's rep confirms. Baby joins big sister India, who was born in 2012.

And finally, there is no fetus between Adam Brody and Leighton Meester, but there is an engagement ring, according to Star magazine. "It was the surprise of her life and she's ecstatic," a source says about Brody's proposal (surprise is right; I had no idea they were even dating). "Right now their plan is to get married next summer. They are still deciding if they want a destination wedding or if they'll marry in southern California somewhere." How "O.C." of them!

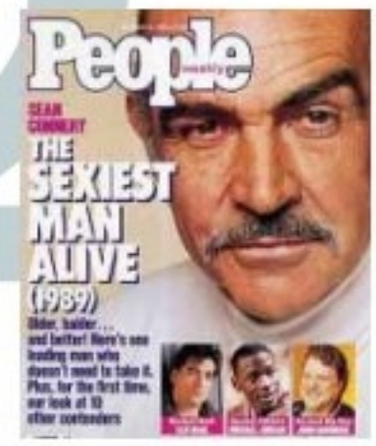
ICYMI: 'Sexiest Man Alive' is Adam Levine

Just in case you haven't heard — and there is probably no way you haven't — Maroon 5 frontman Adam Levine has been voted People magazine's Sexiest Man Alive. "As a musician, you have fantasies that you want to win Grammys, but I didn't really think that this was on the table," the singer told People for its upcoming issue.



"I was just amazed and stunned and it almost seemed like they were kidding, but they weren't, so that's cool."

That IS cool, Adam. But you will never beat 1989's Sexiest Man, Sean Connery. Sorry, all you Movember people out there. You will never beat this 'stache (however, if you think you can, be sure to post a photo on Facebook or Twitter using the hashtag #MetroStache from now until Nov. 30).

Don't forget Donald Sutherland and Philip Seymour Hoffman are also in "Catching Fire." / MURRAY CLOSE

ADMIT ONE

Metro rounds up what's in cinemas this week.

Must see

1 'The Hunger Games: Catching Fire'
For her first (of three) sequels, funny-named archery enthusiast Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence) is forced into a "special edition" of the tussle from the first, which is a clever way of not doing exactly the same thing again.

2 'Delivery Man'
The French-language Canadian dramedy "Starbuck" is getting remakes both here and in France. Vince Vaughn takes the reins as a serial sperm donor who meets the hundreds of kids he's sired.

3 'Nebraska'
After stints in wine country ("Sideways") and Hawaii ("The Descendants"), Alexander Payne returns to the Midwest. Comic actors Will Forte and Bob Odenkirk play brothers, but it's only sort of a comedy, following the former as he hits the road with his cranky, alkie father (Bruce Dern).

4 'Mother of George'
Andrew Dosunmu, about to helm the film on Afrobeat legend Fela Kuti, directed this ravishing look at the Nigerian population of Brooklyn's Crown Heights neighborhood, with Danai Gurira of "The Walking Dead" as a newlywed having trouble conceiving a child.

5 'The Best Man Holiday'
It only took 14 years, but "The Best Man" — the 1999 dramedy about four friends dealing with marriage and other issues — gets its catch-up sequel, with the likes of Morris Chestnut, Terrence Howard and Nia Long back on board.

6 'Dallas Buyers Club'
The Matthew McConaughey Comeback Tour continues with a role as a Texas homophobe who got AIDS in the '80s and started a black market company to sell drugs.

7 'The Book Thief'
The latest best-seller that will make for a hard sell to audiences is Markus Zusak's tome about an orphan (Sophie Nelisse) living in Nazi Germany. Geoffrey Rush and Emily Watson play her foster parents.

Chris Pratt has become something of an incredible growing-and-shrinking machine lately, getting superbuff for "Zero Dark Thirty" and then impressively out-of-shape for his latest, "Delivery Man," in which he co-stars as Vince Vaughn's pessimistic friend and hapless attorney. And after that, he got into superhero form for next year's Marvel spectacle "Guardians of the Galaxy." But Pratt is OK with the misery, as long as it keeps audiences laughing.

You had all the best lines in the movie.
Vince's character comes from such a hopeful place, but I think maybe the best comedy comes from a place of hopelessness, and that's where my character is at. He's just a sad, miserable type of guy, and that's where you mine the best comedy. I think to me, that's the ultimate accomplishment in acting — to be in a place of such utter pain but people find it hilarious. But hopefully not all of my pain is funny. Like, the only pain that's funny is the pain that doesn't really hurt. If a brick falls on someone's head and then their brains fall out and they die, you're not going to laugh.

All four of your character's kids looked about the same age.
Yeah, we were busy. There was a whole backstory I came up with, where [he and his wife] met in law school, she got a really great job that brought us to Brooklyn and had one kid. I was like, "I'm a progressive man, I can handle being a stay-at-home dad." And then next thing you know, four years later we have four kids, the passion's gone, I've gained weight and she's sleeping with one of her partners.

It's the classic story, but the genders are reversed. It's like what so many men since the '50s have been doing to these poor mothers: getting them pregnant, saddling them with the responsibility of child-rearing and then going off and sleeping with someone better-looking and younger. Then they're stuck. They can't disappear, they've got these f—ing kids to feed.

How often do you put that much work into a character's backstory?
For this movie, I felt like the backstory was really important. I wanted to focus on backstory and I wanted to do this physical transformation to get into it. It was something totally different for me.

NED EHRBAR
ned.ehrbar@metro.lu

Keeping promises

You've been doing a lot of physical transformations lately.
That's right. I am my own superhero — I can gain and lose weight. [Laughs] I worked really hard for a long time, ate the right things. I said I would do it and I did it. Something makes you feel really good about that.

Rebecca Taylor launches Black Tie collection

You love Rebecca Taylor's pretty, feminine dresses for date nights and birthday parties, but now the label is ready to dress you for something a bit fancier — like a night at the opera or black-tie wedding — with its new line of formal gowns and cocktail dresses.

Inspired by the Pyramide du Louvre after a recent trip to Paris, Taylor set out to create a collection that married the romantic feel of the famous structure with its clean, modern lines. The outcome: dresses in mineral colors, such as steel and blush, embellished with beadwork and crystals, and floor-grazers made edgy with leather, sheer fabrics and studs. ‘Let your geek flag fly’

Books. Nerds can ace the dating game, too.

Behind the game controller, you’re as brave as Link from “The Legend of Zelda,” but on a date you’re no more suave than Mario.

Self-proclaimed geek Eric Smith is helping others navigate the levels of dating in his new book, “The Geek’s Guide to Dating.” He’s made it out alive, and has a fiancee to prove it.

“Just lay it all out there and be who you are,” Smith advises daters. “Eventually you’re going to find a person who appreciates that.”

Smith’s road to engagement wasn’t easy. In 2011, he penned an essay about a terrible breakup where he sold the engagement ring he’d bought for his intended and bought a suit of Master Chief armor from “Halo.” Geeks everywhere found it to be a suitable exchange; the essay quickly went viral. “It’s probably the most popular thing I’ll ever write,” he says, jokingly.

See more at www.metro.us

Friends and family encouraged him to write more. “I wrote a couple of essays about video games and my love life and things like that,” says Smith, who also co-founded the Philadelphia blog “Geekadelphia.” Publishers at Quirk Books took notice, and the result is a dating manual — complete with 8-bit art — that helps Player One find that special Player Two.

Smith’s best advice? “My favorite tip is to not be ashamed of anything; let your geek flag fly,” he says. When he was dating, Smith says he got some flack for his OkCupid profile that cited his penchant for zombies, video games and a pet rabbit named after a character from the “Watchmen” comic book. To that: “If someone doesn’t want to talk to me, then they’re clearly not right for me.”

That said, Smith assures readers that your future Player Two doesn’t necessarily have to share your nerdy interests. “It shouldn’t be a deal breaker if they aren’t into the same things you are,” he says, adding that his fiancee isn’t a gamer. But Smith lured her into his favorite hobby with something she loves — a good story. “‘Bioshock Infinite’ has this incredible storyline and really memorable characters. She loved it.”

While his book — available Dec. 3 — breaks down every aspect of the dating game, from Facebook creeping to accessorizing, Smith’s dating mantra is pretty simple: “I always tell my friends to just go for it. As geeks, we like to overthink things and lay out all of our moves. But as much as people like to call dating a game, it re-

Level up

Smith’s tips for a first date:

- Choose activities that let you learn about the other person.
- Bookstores or comic book stores work because they let you see what kinds of subjects a potential date is interested in.
- Used book shops are nice because the scent of old books is “romantic,” Smith says.
- Record shops work because “if they see something they like, it gives you a chance to be sweet and buy something,” he says.

Stuffing. Dine out for a stress-free (and cheaper) Turkey Day.

Thanksgiving is about two things: food and family. Both wonderful, of course, but under all that tradition and joy there's the hidden cost of inviting the relatives over, making mountains of food and cleaning up afterward. And let's not forget about the time you have to spend tidying up before company even arrive. Start a new tradition this year by taking the family out for Thanksgiving dinner. Many places offer great deals, and none of them make you wash the dishes when it's all over. Even better, you can skip waking up at 5 a.m. to brine, baste or peel.

Bridget Foy's

A measly $26 will get you a dinner of turkey; corn-bread stuffing made with sausage and fennel; mashed potatoes; green and yellow beans; and cranberry compote. If you're over the whole traditional thing, the standard menu options are available too. Start your own tradition with the succulent barbecue duck tacos or the cheesesteak croquettes. $26 per person, 200 South St., 215-922-1813, www.bridgetfoys.com

Twisted Tail

Just because this bluesy Headhouse Square spot is known for barbecue doesn't mean you can't gobble up roasted turkey. Along with the classic bird, the family-style offerings include prime rib, honey-barbecue-glazed salmon and pineapple-citrus-glazed ham. Sides are a traditional assortment of Brussels sprouts, cranberry jelly, sweet potatoes, corn-bread stuffing and baked beans. Eat there, or order as take-out. $35 per person, 509 S. 2nd St., 215-558-2471, www.thetwistedtail.com

London Grill

The Fairmount restaurant will also offer a buffet-style meal for Thanksgiving. The spread includes streusel-topped sweet potato casserole, corn bread and sausage stuffing, vegetarian stuffing, ham, turkey, mac 'n' cheese and pumpkin-ricotta pie. That's right, pumpkin-ricotta. $45 per person, 2301 Fairmount Ave., 215-978-4545, www.londongrill.com

Lacroix

True, this one is more of a splurge. But if you have the dough, doll yourself up and get ready for a fancy all-day buffet. The food starts at 11 a.m., making those who wait until 3 o'clock to eat look like a bunch of turkeys. The steam trays will be filled with herb-roasted turkey breast and pomegranate-glazed turkey thigh, glazed ham, garlic mashed potatoes and three varieties of stuffing. Choose from traditional; apple, comte and truffle; or clam and guanciale. Or just go ahead and try them all — it is a buffet after all. $95 per person, 210 W. Rittenhouse Square, 215-790-2533, www.lacroixrestaurant.com

Holidays unite!

Drink up. Celebrate the launch of Beaujolais Nouveau 2013

Patrons taste the Beaujolais Nouveau wine on Nov. 17, 2010, in Lyon, France, during the 2010 vintage Beaujolais Nouveau launch. / AFP, GETTY IMAGES

There's no real wine party like a Beaujolais Nouveau party. In a stroke of brilliant marketing, the wine can only be released after the stroke of midnight on the third Thursday in November, according to French law (this year, that's today). Made with that summer's Gamay grapes, "Beaujolais Nouveau Day" boasts parties all over the world to celebrate the first wine of the season. Here are five things you need to know about the wine:

1 Beaujolais Nouveau comes from the Beaujolais region in France, which is located south of Burgundy and has been producing wines since Roman times. While there are many wine growers, Georges Duboeuf is the No. 1 Beaujolais Nouveau brand in the United States.

2 Beaujolais Nouveau is made from 100 percent Gamay grapes, which have thinner skins than most grapes, causing lower levels of tannin. The wine is meant to be served slightly chilled and goes with a variety of foods, especially holiday turkey and ham.

3 Originally, Beaujolais Nouveau was the wine of the vineyard workers, consumed to celebrate the end of harvest and giving them a first taste of the new vintage.

4 In 1985, France passed a law requiring that Beaujolais Nouveau must always be released on the third Thursday in November anywhere in the world.

5 As a way to announce the wine's official release, Beaujolais Nouveau arrival parties became popular throughout France and abroad. Now, Beaujolais Nouveau Day is a global celebration — it is the New Year's Eve for wine lovers. METRO

The chef behind the bald man

Hot Chef. Katzie Guy-Hamilton is whipping up sweets at Max Brenner.

"I have a sweet tooth and I know that it can be set off very easily," says Guy-Hamilton. / LYNDON MARCEAU

For the record, Max Brenner — whose sweets emporium boasts "chocolate by the bald man" — is not a real person. But Katzie Guy-Hamilton is. As Max Brenner's Director of Food and Beverage, she's the one coming up with the ooey-gooey deliciousness you've likely indulged in at the restaurant (1500 Walnut St., 215-344-8150). She's played the role of that mythical bald man since January.

Sweet job — how'd you land it?
Max Brenner historically has always been a little off-center. They love chocolate and the company has a lot of fun. I would say that I like to think of desserts and sweets in the same way, where I want to have fun with what I do. I don't want to call myself a little off center, but the reality is, I am. [Laughs]

What menu items are you excited about these days?
Something that we just launched we call the crepe pasta. It encourages you to play with a crepe in a different way. It's a crepe with our melted chocolate, cold chocolate ganache and different fruits. There's a lot of texture and fun going on. It resembles pasta, but it's delicious like dessert. We try and not be kitschy per se, we want you to just have fun. Another that I absolutely adore and I grew up with is fried dough. It's dough doused in chocolate, drizzled with toffee and filled with ice cream. You have to share it with people. That's where my mind goes — where it's not neat and clean and I really want you to lick your fingers.

Give Metro a pat on the back

Re: 'Thank you, readers, for keeping Metro on top' (Metro, Nov. 19) Congratulations to you as well. Newspapers and magazines have to deal with increasing costs for newsprint, delivery and distribution along with reduced advertising revenues and declining readership due to competition from the Internet and other new information sources. I've been grateful that you have afforded me the opportunity to express my views via letters to the editor along with others who may have different opinions on the issues of the day.

Patronize the advertisers; they provide the necessary revenues to help keep Metro free! Let them know you saw their ad. This helps keep our neighbors employed and the local economy growing. In the marketplace of ideas, let us hope our Metro continues to survive and prosper!

Health is employer's concern

Re: 'A weighty issue' (Metro, Nov. 19) I disagree with letter writer Tim Riker's response. There is no such evidence that overweight people can perform the same tasks as healthy, in-shape people. Many people are diagnosed with arthritis, a disease that still does not have a distinct cause. However, it is the obligation of the employees to notify their employer that they no longer can perform the tasks they stated they could perform in writing when they filled out an application. Healthy people should not share a burden, they have the right to work with people who are also healthy. An employer should have the right to address any health risks.

Flint enters record book at Drexel humble as ever

NCAA. The Dragons head coach is now the winningest coach in the school's history.

Bruiser Flint's Dragons started off the season with a narrow, five-point loss at No. 22 UCLA, but have now won three straight since then. / GETTY IMAGES

James "Bruiser" Flint heard the talk. He knew the record was coming. But he's a basketball coach, and coaches are focused in the moment.

Flint, the highly successful men's basketball coach at Drexel, became the all-time winningest coach in school history when the Dragons defeated Elon, 71-64, Monday night in the opening round of the NIT Season Tip-Off at Rutgers University.

Now in his 13th season, Flint earned his 214th victory at Drexel and the 300th of his career, passing Sam Cozen for the No. 1 position in school history. He followed it up with a win over Rutgers the following night.

"I was teasing the guys afterward in the locker room that they made it hard on me," Flint told Metro in a telephone interview.

Flint never set out to achieve personal records. It just happened because of his hard work, desire and dedication to the Drexel program. He has won CAA Coach of the Year four times since accepting the head coaching position in 2001.

"Honestly, I don't even think about things like this stuff," Flint said. "I'm on to the next game. I'm happy to have the record, but until recently, I didn't even know who held the record. I just don't think that way. The guys on the team and students on campus were talking about it so you knew the record was coming. I wouldn't be where I am without all the great players, staff, coaches and everyone associated with Drexel through the years that I've been here."

Flint, who was born in Philadelphia and played at St. Joseph's, is popular in the area and throughout the country. Even if he downplayed the record-setting win, his phone began to light up soon after beating Elon.

"I was on to the next game, and everybody was calling, texting, congratulating me," Flint said. "I heard from so many former players, staff members, friends. It was great. It's always nice to hear from people."

McNabb answers Andrews' criticism

"For everything that I've been questioned for in Philadelphia," McNabb told 97.5. "And then now you come out and say, you point the finger directly at me, like I'm the one that's ruined your career?"

METRO'S FANTASY GURU BREAKS IT ALL DOWN.

START YOUR

The easiest way to tilt a tight playoff matchup in your favor is by winning in the defensive game. The time to stash is now.

We're not going to sit guys like Victor Cruz just because he's playing the Seahawks in Week 15. But what we can do is think about which defenses to add now with both eyes on the playoffs. It's worth carving out a bench spot.

Streaming options

The Titans are available in far too many leagues. Even if you don't want to use them in Oakland this week, they face turnover-prone Carson Palmer in Week 15 and are at Jacksonville (aka the dream) in Week 16. Alter-raun Verner and Jason McCourty are quietly two of the best corners in the NFL. A riskier option that still has a ton of upside is the Bills. They don't have a ton of talent, but are at Tampa in Week 14, at Jacksonville in Week 15 and vs. Miami in Week 16.

Avoid at all costs

The Giants defense has been rapidly improving during this four-game win streak, but they are

NFL news

The Lions inanely benched Reggie Bush on Sunday for fumbles and poor footing at Heinz Field in Pittsburgh. Don't panic. Even head coach Jim Schwartz realizes how valuable Bush is in this pass-first scheme. Back on the fast track of Ford Field against the Bucs this week, Bush is going to go off. He's a prime buy-low candidate if your trading window is still open.

at San Diego in Week 14, vs. Seattle Week 15 and at Detroit in Week 16. Those are three excellent, high-scoring offenses to avoid. Also, if you've been riding the Ravens then you need to start thinking ahead right now. Baltimore's defense will be hands off against the Lions and Patriots during Weeks 15 and 16.

Best of the best

One of the waiver adds of the year has been the Kansas City defense. Owners will be rewarded with matchups against Oakland and Indianapolis in Weeks 15 and 16. The 49ers matchups are even better. They get Tampa Bay and Atlanta in those two weeks. Without wide receiver Julio Jones and with one of the worst offensive lines in football, the Falcons offense has become one of the worst in the league.

NFL pickups

Keep these names in mind if you are looking to tweak your fantasy football roster.

- Miles Austin, WR, Cowboys — With his hamstrings at 100 percent for now, Austin is expected to retake starting duties from Terrance Williams.
- Nate Burleson, WR, Lions — His broken arm is finally healed from the unfortunate pizza-saving incident and Burleson will be a candidate for six catches per game going forward.
- Bobby Rainey, RB, Buccaneers — Rainey surprisingly left Brian Leonard in the dust last week with 30 carries, 163 yards and two touchdowns, seizing control of this backfield.

Padres pitch

Johnson signs with Padres

Philadelphia had been mentioned by many as a possible landing spot for free agent pitcher Josh Johnson.

But the former Marlins and Blue Jays hurler agreed to a one-year, $8 million deal with San Diego Wednesday, according to multiple reports.

The 29-year-old Johnson is coming off a disappointing 2013 season with Toronto in which he had a 6.20 ERA in just 81 innings and posted a 2-8 record. The righty was a two-time All-Star with the Marlins. MATT BURKE

Word on Welker

Brady doesn't doubt Welker

Questions remain as to whether or not Broncos receiver Wes Welker will play against his old team Sunday night after suffering a concussion against Kansas City.

Welker's old quarterback, Tom Brady, is one who has no doubt about his status for this weekend's mega-showdown, however.

"[Welker] loves playing football and if there's a chance for him to play, especially coming back here, he's definitely going to be out there," Brady told WEEI radio. MATT BURKE

MLB. A-Rod storms out of 'farce' meeting

Alex Rodriguez / GETTY IMAGES

Alex Rodriguez's arbitration hearing continues to descend into the absurd.

According to WFAN radio, Rodriguez angrily stormed out of his arbitration hearing with MLB Wednesday morning, calling the proceedings a "farce."

"I am disgusted with this abusive process, designed to ensure that the player fails," Rodriguez said in a statement shortly after leaving the hearing.

The Yankees third baseman is in the process of appealing his 211-game suspension over the use of performance-enhancing drugs.

Rodriguez and his lawyers, led by Joe Tacopina, requested MLB Commissioner Bud Selig testify in front of the arbitrator, which was denied. WFAN reports this led to Rodriguez slamming his fist on the table and immediately leaving the hearing.

"He did not have the courage to look me in the eye," Rodriguez said of Selig to WFAN Radio.

It is unknown how this will affect the hearing going forward, though it could result in Rodriguez's camp pursuing a suit in a court of law. MLB wanted to avoid this scenario and came to an agreement with Rodriguez to hold the arbitration hearings. MARK OSBORNE

WHAT IS MILD COGNITIVE IMPAIRMENT (MCI) DUE TO ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE (AD)?

MCI due to AD refers to the early phase of AD in which an otherwise healthy-minded person experiences a gradual, progressive decline in thinking ability. This decline is significant enough to be noticed, but not severe enough to interfere with daily life or the ability to function independently.

At age 65, you have a 1 in 8 chance of developing AD. After age 85, the risk increases to a 1 in 2 chance. Currently, there is no cure for AD or way to delay the symptoms.

WHAT IS THE TOMMORROW STUDY?

The TOMMORROW study seeks to learn more about the genetic risk for developing MCI due to AD and whether an investigational medication might prove effective in delaying the first symptoms of this condition. With the chance of you or someone you know developing AD, why not participate in clinical research to help our understanding of this disease?

HOW CAN YOU PARTICIPATE?

You may be eligible to participate if you are:

- 65 to 83 years of age
- In good physical and mental health
